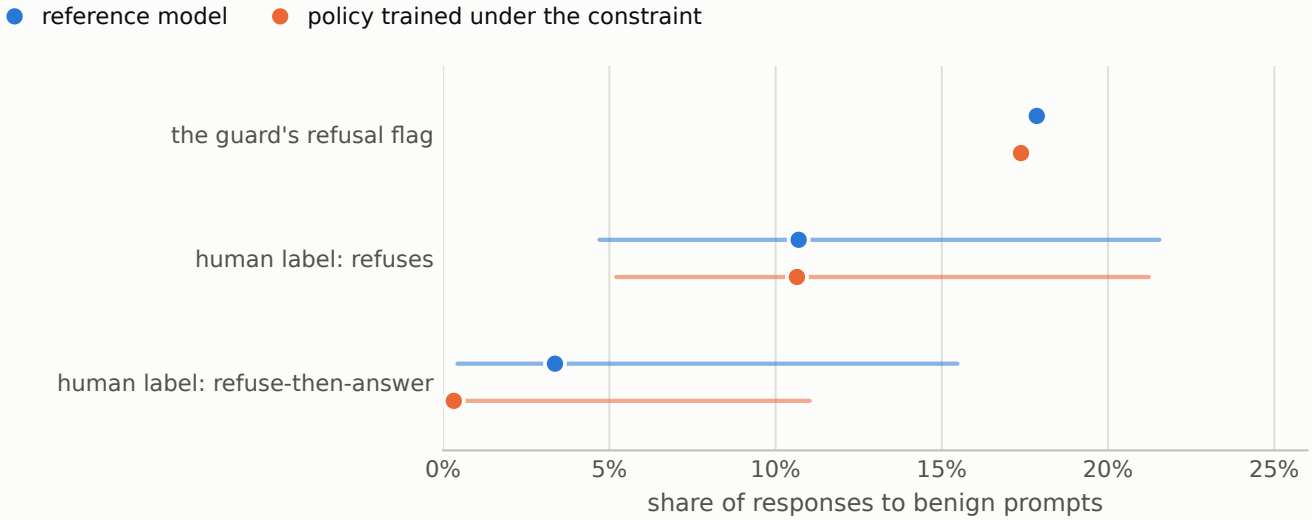
In human terms no difference between the two policies is detected, and both refuse less often than the guard says


220 responses labelled by one annotator, a stratified sample read with its design weights; bars are conservative 95% intervals. The guard's rate is its share of the whole pool, so it has no interval.